Going Against the Grain: Triptans and Cardiovascular Disease

Session Date: 01/09/2024

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Guidelines available for the acute treatment of migraine are nearly a decade old and many newly available acute treatment options including gepants and ditans are not included. This has left the place of newer medication classes unclear in the line of treatment for acute migraine. Additionally, recent literature has shown migraines are associated with increased risk of stroke and cardiovascular disease. Many medication classes used for acute migraine treatment, including triptans, ergots, and NSAIDs, may be contraindicated in patients at high risk of stroke and cardiovascular disease, complicating treatment. This presentation will review recommendations for acute migraine treatment as well as recent literature on migraines and the association between stroke and cardiovascular disease.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

- Describe first-line treatment for acute migraine management.
- Discuss current literature assessing the association between migraines and cardiovascular disease.
- Develop an acute treatment regimen for a patient with migraines and cardiovascular disease.
