Tirzepatide: Weighing the Options

Session Date: 01/16/2024

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

Obesity remains a prevalent condition in the United States, increasing the risk of stroke, heart disease, and type 2 diabetes mellitus in those impacted. Yet, limited pharmacological interventions exist on the market. Tirzepatide is a once-weekly injectable medication with a novel dual GIP/GLP-1 receptor agonist mechanism. Approved by the FDA since May of 2022 for blood glucose control in patients with type 2 diabetes mellitus, tirzepatide has recently been granted approval for the use in adults with obesity or are overweight with at least one weight-related condition. This presentation will review the literature detailing the effectiveness of tirzepatide that resulted in its approval in weight management and discuss pertinent clinical scenarios for use of this drug.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Identify the novel mechanism of action of tirzepatide.
2. Review the current primary literature of tirzepatide for chronic weight management.
3. Describe appropriate clinical scenarios for tirzepatide use in weight management.
