Session Date: 06/04/2024

Session Time: 11:00 – 11:45 AM (CST)

Target Audience

This continuing education (CE) session was planned to meet the needs of professional staff who deal with the selection and monitoring of medication(s) as part of their patient care duties, including pharmacists, RNs, APRNs, PAs, MDs.

Activity Overview

The 2020 American Society of Addiction Medicine (ASAM) Guidelines recommend buprenorphine as an optimal first-line treatment for opioid use disorder (OUD). As opioid dependence continues to pose significant public health challenges, the need for effective and adaptable induction strategies is crucial. This presentation explores a variety of buprenorphine induction methods, including standard, low-dose initiation, and high dose induction, providing a comprehensive overview of their clinical implications. Attendees will gain insights into the latest literature and practical applications of these strategies. Additionally, the session will discuss how to tailor induction plans to individual patient needs, enhancing treatment accessibility and effectiveness.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this knowledge-based CE session, participants should be able to:

1. Discuss the mechanism of action of buprenorphine and its role in medications for opioid use disorder
2. Compare various buprenorphine induction strategies described in the literature
3. Identify an appropriate buprenorphine induction strategy based upon patient specific factors
